ABOUT ME

I am currently in my senior year of studying Information Technology with a strong desire for software development, particularly in the realm of web development. My journey in IT has been an ongoing exploration, seeking to align my skills and interests in this dynamic field. I am dedicated and self-taught, supplemented by my university curriculum.

I've had the privilege of gaining one year of invaluable freelance experience, during which I focused on enhancing my skills in problem-solving and improving website performance.

My current area of expertise is centered on front-end web development, where I've dedicated myself to mastering HTML, CSS, and Sass, while also possessing a foundational understanding of JavaScript. In addition, I am currently delving into the realm of back-end development by studying PHP, Database, Ajax, Git, and some web frameworks and libraries such as Laravel, Angular, Tailwind, React, and jQuery.

My commitment to continuous learning and self-improvement is unwavering, and I eagerly explore various opportunities within the tech industry, As I look forward to an internship, I'm excited to apply my skills and continue my journey of learning and self-improvement in this ever-evolving field.
